Article 1

This code was established in accordance with the University Act and Private School Law.

Article 2

This university is called Ming Chuan University and will be referred to as “the university” below.

Article 3

The university complies with the rules found in the University Act. Its aims are to conduct academic research, cultivate talent, raise the level of culture, serve society, promote the development of the country, and create a university with its own unique characteristics.

Article 4

A Board of Directors has been established in this university and its organizational charter is listed elsewhere.

Article 5

The university has established various schools, departments, graduate schools, specialized degree programs, and continuing education units. Details regarding their constitutions can be found in Appendix I, Ming Chuan University Chart of Schools, Departments, Graduate Schools, Specialized Degree Programs, and Continuing Education Units. In the interests of continued development, the university may submit proposals for the expansion, restructuring, or discontinuation of individual schools, departments, graduate schools, specialized degree programs, or continuing education units. When a proposal is passed at the University Affairs Committee Meeting and submitted to the Ministry of Education, Appendix I of this code will be revised accordingly.

Article 6

The university has established the position of President as a general overseer of the affairs of the university.

The nomination of the President is conducted by the President Nomination Committee, an entity created by the Board of Directors. Two or three candidates are presented as nominees to the Board of Directors and the Board resolves to appoint one of the candidates as the President. The resolution will then be submitted to the Ministry of Education for approval. The Nominating Committee consists of representatives of instructors, administrators, alumni, and non-university related individuals with recognized integrity. Within the committee, the number of instructor representatives must be half or more of the total number. Details of the committee's structure and operation are listed elsewhere and have been implemented after being approved by the Ministry of Education.

Article 7

The term of the President is three years and, in principle, a term starts from August 1 or February 1. When the term expires, the President may serve a second term if permitted by the Board of Directors. Should the university meet Article 9 and Article 10 item 1 of "University Assessment Regulation", and have been assessed as an outstanding university, the age limit of the President may be extended to 75 years old. When the term expires or a vacancy arises, during the selection of a new President and before the new President takes office, the Board will select and appoint one professor from among all current full-time faculty members who can work toward university affairs development beneficially as the Acting President to handle university affairs.

Article 8

The university has one to five Vice Presidents to assist the President in administering university affairs. The President assigns the Vice Presidents from among Professors or full-time faculty members with global view and capability. If a Vice President is hired externally under contract, he/she must have abundant experience in administration or business.
